Pope Benedict to Cardinal O'Brien

I am writing to thank you most sincerely for all that you and your brother bishops in Scotland did to make the first part of my official Visit to the United Kingdom such a success.

I am very conscious of the significance, both politically and ecclesiastically, of the events of those days, and the Scottish stage of my Visit was essential to its positive outcome. I would ask in particular that you kindly convey my affectionate greeting to the people of Scotland, especially those who welcomed me as I drove through your beautiful cities and countryside.

Invoking the intercession of St Andrew, patron of the Scots, I will impart my Apostolic blessing as pledge of grace and peace. Pope Benedict XVI
